

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An infrared ear thermometer is provided to read the temperature of the tympanic membrane within the ear canal of a patient. The infrared ear thermometer includes a housing, a probe coupled to the housing, and an infrared sensor received at 5 least in part within the probe.